

Human Factors Review

STR understands the risk associated with use of consumer products and the potential for childhood injury. We partner with clients to reduce risk of injury and potential product recalls. STR's experts evaluate children's products for both age appropriateness and potential safety hazards. This human factors review takes into consideration foreseeable play patterns and interactions of children at specific ages based upon their physical, cognitive and developmental abilities. Products are evaluated for intended & unintended user, function (foreseeable use/misuse) and design (fit, comfort and size).

Services offered include:

- Age Analysis
- Product Design Evaluation / Risk Assessment
- Injury analysis
- Human Factors Training

STR's experts are trained in child development and have technical knowledge and vast experience in consumer product injury and related issues. Our product design evaluation goes above & beyond statutory toy testing requirements.
